March 24, 2009 10:53 AM ET

Bond Laboratories, Inc. BNLB today announced fourth-quarter 2008 revenue exceeded $1,397,500; up 275 percent from third-quarter 2008 revenue of $501,290.

“This increase in quarter over quarter revenue was a direct result of much higher growth in sales and marketing of the company’s core products, combined with the addition of NDS Nutritional Products, Inc. products,” stated Scott Landow, CEO of Bond Laboratories, Inc.

“The Company is also experiencing dynamic revenue growth through the integration of its new seasoned NDS/Infinite Labs Fusion sales and management teams. Fusion Premium Energy products are quickly building broad distribution through the convenience store channel and food, drug and mass merchants. Our NDS/Infinite Labs division continues to grow rapidly through its strong ties to the specialty retail channel with its exclusive line of sports nutrition products sold through GNC stores. During fourth-quarter 2008, the Company also began to see growth in the military, sporting goods distribution and convenience store channels.”

Landow continued: “During the fourth quarter we were able to complete a great deal of product development and marketing work to set the table for a very strong 2009. We expect to launch several potential blockbuster 'Category Killer' products shortly as a result of the 4th Q R & D. Many of our expenses in 2008 will not be ongoing. In addition we were able to issue restricted shares for services in several instances, versus using dollars. Of the $2,916,369 loss we expect to report for the quarter, approximately $2,500,000 was comprised of non-cash/non-recurring expenses, leaving an ongoing loss from operations of approximately $416,000.”
